Information on countries against which sanctions are in place

Restrictive measures or "sanctions" are an important instrument of the EU's Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP). They are used by the EU as part of a holistic and comprehensive policy approach that includes political dialogue, accompanying efforts and the use of other available measures.

To ensure that

- there are no natural persons or legal entities against whom systematic sanctions are in place (e.g. travel ban or financial sanctions,...) among the participants of your project,
- your planned activities (e.g. specialist training, know-how transfer, services,....) are not prohibited by sanctions law, or
- your activities do not concern a country against which sanctions are in place

we would like to ask you to check any suspicious cases against the EU sanctions map!

To make it easier for you to assess this we are pointing out some particularly vulnerable fields of research here:

- Physics, Chemistry, Pharmacy
- (Quantum) Optics
- Biotechnology
- Medicine
- Climate/energy
- Mobility
- Communication and information technology
- Nanotechnology
- Aerospace

If you have any suspicions or questions, please contact the national authorities responsible for implementing the applicable restrictive EU measures (sanctions) according to decisions and regulations of the Council of the European Union!

Further information material can be found on the KIWi-Website (DAAD-Centre for International Academic Cooperation).

Thank you very much for your cooperation!
